Public officer obtaining advantage without consideration or without adequate consideration

6. Any person who, being a public officer, solicits, accepts or obtains or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain for himself or for any other person, any advantage without lawful consideration or for a lawful consideration which, he knows or has reason to believe to be inadequate, from any person whom he knows or has reason to believe to have been, or to be, or to be likely or about to be, concerned in any matter or transaction with himself as a public officer, or having any connection with the official functions of himself or of any public officer to whom he is subordinate, or from any person whom he knows or has reason to believe to be interested in or related to or acting for or on behalf of the person so concerned, or having such a connection, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine not exceeding twenty thousand shillings or to both such imprisonment and such fine, and, in addition, the court may order that the amount or value of any advantage received by him, or any part thereof, be forfeited.

Advantage received on behalf of accused

7. For the purposes of section 3 and section 6, where any advantage has been received with the knowledge of the accused person, by any person other than the accused person, and the court is satisfied, having regard to his relationship to the accused person or to any other circumstances, that such person has received the same for or on behalf of such accused person, or by reason of his relationship to the accused person or otherwise on account of or in connection with the official functions of such accused person, such advantage shall be deemed to have been received by such accused person.

Public officers may be required to give account of their properties

8.-(1) Any police officer of or above the rank of Superintendent may, if he is authorized in writing in that behalf by the President or by the Attorney-General, by notice in writing addressed to any public officer require such public officer to give, within such time and in such manner as may be specified in the notice, a full and true account of all or any class of properties which such public officer or his agent has in his possession or which he or his agent had in his possession at any time during which the public officer held any public office, and he may also, by the same or subsequent notice, require such public officer to give a true account of how he acquired such property.

(2) Any public officer who fails to comply with any of the provisions of a notice addressed to him pursuant to this section, or knowingly gives a false account in relation to any property, shall be guilty of an offence and shall on conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

- (3) For the purposes of this section-
- "agent" means the husband, wife or child of the public officer, any debtor of the public officer, or any other person acting for or on behalf of the public officer;
- "public officer" includes any person who held a public office at any time during the five years immediately preceding the date on which a notice under subsection (1) is sent to him.

(4) In a prosecution for an offence under subsection (2) evidence of the fact that a notice under subsection (1) was given by a police officer of or above the rank of Superintendent shall be conclusive evidence that such police officer was authorized to give such notice by the President or, as the case may be, the Attorney-General.

9.-(1) Where, in consequence of any investigation made pursuant to section 8 or of a search conducted pursuant to section 13 or of an investigation of a bank account pursuant to section 12 or of any investigation carried out by or under the directions of the Director of Public Prosecutions, any public officer is found to be or to have been in possession of any property, or is found to have received the benefit of any services, which he may reasonably be suspected of having corruptly acquired or received when he held a public office, such public officer may be charged with having or having had in his possession property reasonably suspected of having been corruptly acquired or, as the case may be, with having received the benefit of services reasonably suspected of having been corruptly received, and if such public officer fails to satisfy the court that he did not corruptly acquire the property or, as the case may be, that he did not corruptly receive the benefit of services, he shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, and in addition thereto the court may order that the property acquired by him be forfeited.

Being in possession of property of corruptly acquired

- (2) For the purposes of this section —
- (a) "corruptly acquired or received" means received, accepted or obtained in circumstances in which it is an offence under section 3 or section 6 to receive, accept or obtain;
- "public officer" includes any person who held a public office at any time during the period of five years immediately preceding the date on which any prosecution under subsection (1) is commenced;
- (b) a public officer shall be deemed to be or to have been in possession of property where such property is or was in possession of any other person and the court is satisfied, having regard to such other person's relationship to the accused person, or to any other circumstances, that such other person is holding or held such property for or on behalf of, or as a debtor of, the accused person or, in the case of such other person being the husband, wife, child, father mother, sister or brother of the accused person, the property was acquired as a gift from the accused person or with the knowledge, consent or connivance of the accused person;

(c) a public officer shall be deemed to have received the benefit of any services where such services were received by any other person and the court is satisfied, having regard to his relationship to the accused person or to any other circumstances, that such other person received such benefit for or on behalf of such accused person or that such services were rendered to such person at the request of the accused person or by reason of his relationship to the accused person.

Presumption of corruption in certain cases

10. Where, in any proceedings under section 3, it is proved that any advantage has been offered, promised or given to, or solicited, accepted or obtained or agreed to be accepted or obtained by a public officer by or from a person, or agent of a person, holding or seeking to obtain a contract from a specified authority, the advantage shall be deemed to have been offered, promised or given and solicited, accepted or obtained or agreed to be accepted or obtained corruptly as such inducement or reward as-is mentioned in section 3 unless the contrary is proved.

Defence in appointment nomination or election

11. No conviction for an offence against this Act shall be invalid by reason only of a defect in the appointment, nomination or election of a person to any office.

Special power of

12.-(1) Notwithstanding any provision in any other written law, the Attorney-General may, if he considers that any evidence of the commission of an offence against this Act by any person is likely to be found in any bank account relating to such person, his wife or child, or of any person reasonably believed by the Attorney-General to be a trustee or agent of such person, authorize in writing any named police officer of or above the rank of Superintendent, either alone or with any other person (hereinafter referred to as an authorized person), to investigate such bank account and such authorization shall be sufficient warrant for the production of such account for scrutiny by such officer or authorized person, and such officer or authorized person may take copies of any relevant entry in any such account.

(2) Any person who fails to produce any such account to such officer or to permit such officer or authorized person to scrutinize the same or to take copies of any relevant entry therein, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding five thousand shillings or to both such imprisonment and fine.

(3) In this section-

"bank account" includes any ledger, day book, cash book, account book and any other document used in the ordinary course of business by any person carrying on, whether on his own behalf as an agent for another, and whether exclusively or otherwise, any banking business whatsoever, whether such person is a bank within the meaning of any law for the time being in force relating to banks or not.

13. (1) The Director of Public Prosecutions may, by writing, authorize any police officer of or above the rank of Superintendent to search any person, if it is reasonably suspected that such person is in possession of property corruptly acquired or to search any premises, vessel, boat, aircraft or other vehicle whatsoever in or upon which there is reason to suspect that any property corruptly acquired has been placed, deposited or concealed.

D.P.P. may authorize search

(2) A police officer authorized to make any search under this section may make such search and, for the purpose of so doing, may enter, using any necessary force and accompanied by such other persons as he deems necessary to assist him, into or upon any premises, vessel, boat, aircraft or other vehicle whatsoever.

14.-(1) In proceedings for an offence under this Act, the fact that an accused person is in possession, for which he cannot satisfactorily account to the court, of pecuniary resources, or of a property the market value of which is, disproportionate to his known sources of income, or that he had, at or about the time of the alleged offence, obtained an accretion to his pecuniary resources or property for which he cannot satisfactorily account to the court, may be proved and may be taken into consideration by the court as corroborating any other evidence in such proceedings that such accused person received or obtained any advantage or corruptly acquired any property.

Special rules of evident

(2) An accused person shall, for the purposes of subsection (1) of this section, be deemed to be in possession of resources or property or to have obtained an accretion thereto where such resources or property are held or such accretion is obtained by any other person, and the court is satisfied, having regard to his relationship to the accused person or to any other circumstances, that such other person is holding such resources or property or has obtained such accretion for or on behalf of, or as a debtor of, such accused person or, in the case of the husband, wife, child, father mother, sister or brother of an accused person, as a gift from such accused person.

(3) In any prosecution for an offence under section 3, section 6, section 8 or section 9, any statement or account in writing given by the accused person pursuant to a notice given to him under subsection (1) of section 8 shall be admissible in evidence notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the Evidence Act, 1967 (including section 27 and section 28 of that Act) or any other written law.

Acts 1967 No. 6

15.-(1) Where the Attorney-General has reason to suspect any person of having corruptly received or acquired an advantage or property, he may, by notice addressed to such person or to any other person to whom the advantage or property, or the proceeds or value, or any part of the proceeds or value, of the advantage or property may be believed to have been transferred or conveyed by the person suspected of having corruptly received or acquired the advantage or property or by an agent of such person, direct the person to whom such notice is addressed not to transfer, dispose of or part with the possession of the sum of money or other property specified in such notice, and every such notice shall remain in force and be binding on the person to whom it is addressed and every other person to whom such money or other

Attorney-General may prohibit transfer of advantage or property corruptly acquired property may pass by the operation of law for a period of six months from the date of the notice or, where proceedings for an offence under this Act or any other written law in relation to the advantage or property have been commenced against any person, until the determination of Such proceedings:

Provided that the Minister for the time being responsible for legal affairs may, in any case, by order under his hand, extend the period during which such notice shall remain in force for such further period or periods as he may specify.

(2) Any person who has been served with a notice under subsection (1) and who, in contravention of such notice, transfers, disposes of or parts with the possession of the sum of money or property specified in the notice, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months.

(3) In any proceeding for an offence under subsection (2), the accused person shall be acquitted if he satisfies the court-

- (a) that the sum of money or other property specified in the notice was delivered to a police officer, or to some other person as directed in the notice; or
- (b) that the sum of money or other property specified in the notice was produced to a court and has been retained by such court; or
- (c) that the notice was subsequently withdrawn by the Attorney-General by notification in writing.
